

The Weekly Skillet

Serving Up New Choices For Your Life!

Volume 1
Issue 28

September 11, 2002

The Main Course

Richard Jorgensen, CEO

Personal Coaching

We all react differently to the idea of change. Some of us might think of ourselves as very involved in change. After all, we go to all the right workshops and keep up with the latest in self-improvement. This must mean we are open to change! The question is, "Did anything really change?" The other possibility is that we are actually avoiding change.

Then there are those of us that shy away from the whole idea of change. We think that things are fine just the way they are. What we don't notice is that this is only true as long we don't look too deep, or if we don't allow others to challenge us. Our unspoken attitude is, "I would be willing to change as long as I can be in control."

Regardless of our personal reaction to the concept of change, our whole life is a process of change. We change everyday. It is not something we control. We are not the same person we were last year, last month, last week, or even yesterday. We are different from one life experience to the next.

It is not the concept of change that bothers us. The difficulty lies in believing that we really can change. Our learned patterns of thinking, feeling, and behaving have made it difficult (if not impossible) to stay changed.

We make progress in certain areas of our

There are five critical factors that need to come together if we are to make real and lasting changes in our lives:

- We must identify specifically what it is we are doing that is not working.
- We must understand why we do these things even though they are not working.
- We must believe there are solutions and alternatives to these things that are not working.
- We must experience these solutions as achievable.
- We must integrate these solutions into our life process.

The coaching process (in its entirety) integrates these five critical factors for change into one system. Each learning module, in combination with personal coaching, allows us to:

- Identify very specifically what it is we are doing that is not working.
- Recognize where these learned patterns came from and how they are reinforced today.
- Examine real solutions that are natural to us as human beings.
- Experience a deep awareness that these solutions can work for us.
- Structure an ongoing process of accountability that allows us to integrate these solutions into our life process.

Life Skills U provides highly qualified coaches to assist the student who desires the full benefit of this unique technology for personal, profession, financial, and spiritual growth!

We invite you to Experience this Extraordinary Process by taking our Passage course with a FULL MONEY

Side Orders

Passage To Adulthood Online Coaching Course!
Packaged For Families

7 Weeks Online!
Starting
Wed. Sept. 18, 8-10pm EST
2002

Come to a FREE online presentation of this material!

Fri. Sept. 13th,
5pm PST

Click to receive more information

In Remembrance of September 11, 2001:

We at Life Skills U wish you and your family Great Love and Peace Always!

Watch !

For Schedule

Need some really basics on using your computer ??

Click to register for an upcoming class

Coach Certification

Next Class

Starts Thurs., Oct. 3, 2002
15 week Series

See the Opportunity

click to email for information

Feel free to forward this!

Please add these people to your mailing list.

Click to stop receiving this mailing